Malt Whiskies

Speyside

Over half of Scotland's malt whisky distilleries can be found within this one region. Undoubtedly the heart of single malt whisky distilling in Scotland. It's classic flavours of honey, vanilla and fresh fruits combine to create whiskies that are both sophisticated and elegant. With age they evolve to deliver dried fruit and sweet spice flavours.

Highlands

One of the most scenic regions in Scotland. Geographically the largest of the whisky-producing regions. It covers some major areas and a variety of warm, rounded single malt whiskies: The West Coast with its maritime influence on malts such as Oban; the Central Highlands, including the heather and honey from one of Scotland's highest distilleries, Dalwhinnie.

Lowlands

The terrain of the Lowlands is characterised by rolling fields which are ideally suited to growing grain for whisky. Tend to be lighter in both colour and body, than those of the Highlands. With little or no peat used in the drying of the malt, the whiskies distilled here are generally fresh and light, fragrant and floral with cereal flavourings.

Islands

Sitting amongst the Inner Hebridean Scottish Isles, are the malt whisky producing islands of Islay and Skye. The rugged island landscapes generally produce single malt whiskies with strong peaty aromas. The Islands malts are unmistakably powerful, bursting with flavour, from the recognised smokiness apparent in almost all offerings.

Islay

The whiskies of the distilleries along the south-eastern coast of the island, have a smoky character derived from peat, considered a central characteristic of the Islay malts, and ascribed both to the water from which the whisky is made and to the peating levels of the barley.
